COVER IMAGE: HISTORY, MYSTERY, AND THE GHOST STORIES OF TREVILIAN STATION BATTLEFIELD

HISTORY, MYSTERY, AND THE GHOST STORIES OF TREVILIAN STATION BATTLEFIELD

Explore Paranormal Encounters, Civil War Ghost Stories, and Haunted Places in Virginia

Whether you're a skeptic, a believer, or someone who simply enjoys a good story, Trevilian Station Battlefield has no shortage of tales to tell. By day, visitors come to explore scenic trails, tour the historic Trevilian House, and learn about the largest all-cavalry battle of the Civil War. But after sunset, some say the battlefield reveals another side of its history – one filled with unexplained sounds, mysterious encounters, and stories that may be shared for generations.

Of course, whether these experiences are paranormal or simply products of imagination is up to each visitor to decide.

A Landscape of Stories

The Battle of Trevilian Station raged across more than 7,000 acres on June 11 and 12, 1864. Thousands of cavalymen fought across the fields and forests surrounding what is now Trevilian Station Battlefield Park. For many people interested in the paranormal, places with deep histories, especially battlefields, often seem to hold onto the past in unexpected ways.

Ed Crebbs, a longtime steward of the Battlefield and member of the TSB Foundation explains, "There were a lot of people killed on both sides. Many were left on the battlefield. We like to think most were buried, but we don't know much about those who may not have been. That may be one reason people feel that the spirits are still there."

Over the years, several paranormal investigation groups have visited the property. Some have spent evenings exploring the historic house, while others have walked the trails, visited the cemeteries, or investigated the reconstructed Netherland Tavern. Their experiences have produced a collection of stories that continue to circulate among volunteers, visitors, and local residents.

Victoria's headstone

Voices in the Trevilian House

Among the many stories shared by paranormal investigators who have visited Trevilian House, one stands out.

During a recent investigation, a member of a ghost-hunting group wore noise-cancelling headphones while others asked questions aloud in different parts of the house. As Ed described it, the goal was to see whether any responses or impressions would come through that others might not immediately hear. At one point, the investigator wearing the headphones lay down on a bed in an upstairs room. As the questions continued, he began speaking as though responding to voices no one else in the room could hear.

Those present later said he appeared to be hearing multiple responses, but one stood out: a woman who identified herself as "Vicky." According to the account, she repeatedly said, "I'm with Ed."

At the time, no one in the group understood who Victoria was or what the phrase meant. It was noted, but not connected to anything specific about the property. It wasn't until later that a possible connection emerged.

Several hundred yards north of the Trevilian House sits a historic cemetery on the battlefield property. A grave there belongs to a woman named Victoria. Months before the investigation, volunteers had discovered her headstone broken into several pieces. Ed had taken the stone home, carefully repaired it, and later returned it to the cemetery.

The Trevilian House, c. 1880s

The investigators were unaware of the damaged gravestone and had never been told the story. Could it have been a coincidence? A lucky guess? Or something more? No one can say for certain.

Other accounts inside the Trevilian House add to this collection of unexplained moments. According to Ed, one ghost-hunting group using a recorder captured what sounded like an elderly woman's voice saying, "Who's in my house?" - a phrase that appeared twice in close succession on playback, even though no one present reported hearing it at the time.

Others have reported hearing doors open and close when no one else was inside, or footsteps moving through the house despite empty hallways and locked rooms. One visitor even returned a week after an overnight stay carrying a spoon she had inexplicably found buried at the bottom of her bag - despite insisting it had been sitting on a table inside the house the night before.

Come Visit and Decide for Yourself

Perhaps the most interesting thing about Trevilian Station's ghost stories is that they aren't particularly frightening. Most describe curious encounters rather than scary ones - a voice on a recording, footsteps in an empty hallway, or a figure glimpsed along a trail. Whether they're connected to the battle, the families who once lived here, or simply the power of a place steeped in history, they've become part of Trevilian Station's modern folklore.

The next time you visit, walk the trails, tour the house, and experience the battlefield for yourself. And if something unexplained happens along the way? Well, you'll have your own story to tell. Want More Thrills? More Mysterious Places to Explore in Louisa County, Virginia:

WINERIES & BREWERIES

Take a tour of our local wineries, relax at a wine tasting, or enjoy one of the special events and mini festivals at the vineyards. Virginia is a favorite wine destination and you'll find that Louisa wines are worth a drive through some gorgeous country roads. Our breweries and cideries offer locally produced products, and frequently host events for nightowls as well as events for the family.

If the spirit moves you, check out Dunnlorra Inn.

There's nothing quite like getting into the spirit of a beautiful bed and breakfast. And when it comes to the Dunnlorra Inn, we mean that literally ... because its owner is a medium who does ghost tours. Mineral, Virginia, you see, has quite the history as a mining town. And that rich history just may be responsible for the spirits that haunt Dunnlorra Inn. Whatever the case may be, owner Lacey Palmer loves regaling her guests with tales of Mineral's past. So if you're looking for an inn with a history like no other, come to Dunnlorra and stay for a spell.

Your prospects are looking bright at Prospect Hill.

When you think bed and breakfast, certain things come to mind. Epic and spacious, however, are probably not among them ... unless you've stayed at Prospect Hill. Prospect Hill takes the intimacy, charm and beauty of the typical bed and breakfast and dials it up. More resort than inn, Prospect Hill boasts 12 rooms and cottages, private luxury bathrooms, fine dining, a massive 40-acre estate and a pool. And it's located in the heart of Virginia wine country. Come experience the luxe version of a Virginia bed and breakfast at the oldest, continually operated frame house in the state. From weddings and events to romantic getaways, there's nothing quite like the thrill of Prospect Hill.

"Life is busy, stressful, and chaotic," said Owner Terenée Mormando. "Our goal at Prospect Hill is to pamper our guests, allowing them the time and atmosphere to relax, recharge, and reconnect."

HISTORY

Drive the roads where the hoof beats of history reverberate... where Jack Jouett rode to save the lives of Thomas Jefferson and other founding fathers; and where General George Custer made his first "last stand" at the Battle of Trevilian Station, one of the largest all-cavalry engagements of the Civil War. The Louisa County Historical Museum offers tours and genealogy resources. The walking tour of the Town of Louisa and the Civil War driving tour are great ways to explore the region's history together as a family. Please use the Visit Louisa app's Experiences tab for more.

Green Springs National Historic Landmark District

Green Springs, Green Spring, VA 23093, USA

Activities, Tourist Attraction

The founding fathers of America envisioned a nation of farmers, not the least of which was James Madison, whose farm lies at the beginning of the Green Springs Loop. With such a long and rich history, Virginia unsurprisingly hosts some of the oldest farms in the nation.

STAND IN THEIR FOOTSTEPS

Photographs taken during the Civil War are among the first widely published battlefield images. Photos brought the realities of war into homes of both the North and the South. Imagine standing at Deep Bottom Landing outside of Richmond watching the bridge being created just as a wartime photographer did.

Working in wagons, Civil War photographers poured a light-sensitive liquid called collodion over a glass or tin plate that was then carefully rushed in a light-proof container to the camera. The cap on the camera lens was uncovered for just a few seconds, exposing the sensitized plate to the image, and the plate was hustled back to the darkroom to be developed. These early pioneers of photography helped advance this art so that today you can effortlessly snap photos in seconds.
